International Symposium for Medicinal Sciences

---

It is my great pleasure to hold the 2nd International Symposium for Medicinal Sciences in the 136th Annual Meeting of Pharmaceutical Society of Japan. The objectives of this symposium are to encourage pharmaceutical company researchers who are interested in drug discovery, to participate in this annual meeting, and also to create an important international platform for all those interested in the medicinal sciences. Since this symposium covers the entire drug discovery field, we welcome participants including pharmacology, pharmacokinetics, and regulatory sciences.

The one of the feature of this symposium is an invited poster presentations. Since high-caliber presentations from the Japanese and foreign pharmaceutical industries, venture companies, and academia will line up in this presentation, domestic young researchers who interested in the drug discovery, will have a good chance to discuss with the first class researchers for drug discovery around the world.
